MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

SUBJECT : Copyright Problems with Where's What

REFERENCE: Memorandum from Legislative Counsel, dated 14 November 1975, Same Subject (OLC 75-2934; OS 5 9474)

25X1A9A 1. During my meeting with [REDACTED] concerning 25X1A9A his book Where's What on 18 August 1975, I specifically raised the question of whether any copyright problems existed with reference to the contents of the book. Mr.
[REDACTED] advised me at that time that with one exception he had requested and obtained from the appropriate individuals releases for any of the quoted materials in the book. The single exception was a portion of a speech given by an executive of the Medical Information Bureau.
This exception is quoted on pages 130-133 of Where's What.
25X1A9A Release for quoting from this speech was not obtained by [REDACTED] because the speech itself was not copyrighted.

25X1A9A 2. Following receipt of reference, I telephonically 25X1A9A recontacted [REDACTED] to confirm the information he had previously given. Telephonically, on 18 November 1975, [REDACTED] reiterated what he had told me earlier. Further, he expressed doubt as to whether he had kept copies of the releases he had obtained, but indicated that he would search through papers he has at home relating to the preparation of the book.

3. In my 18 November conversation, I told [REDACTED] 25X1A9A that we had declassified the book after receiving several Freedom of Information and other requests. I also indicated that we were putting a copy of the book in the Library of Congress. He seemed somewhat surprised at this action, since very early in the game two copies of the book were given to the Library of Congress which was holding the copies in a special classified section of the library.
The earlier arrangements for getting the copies into the Library of Congress were handled through [REDACTED], 25X1A9A at that time the Security Officer of the library.
